“ I was sad to hear of Boo's recent passing.
I remember a time when we were at the driving range preparing for a golf tournament. Boo saw me struggling with my rusty swing and walked over to me. With his club in his hand, he offered me advice. Boo had a way of making complicated things simple and I'll never forget what he told me. "Lynn, it's really simple... You start your swing right and finish well. Everything in between just takes care of itself."
Good advice for golf and good advice for life. The world has lost a special person.
God bless you and much love,
Lynn and Mary Wood

“ Sincere condolences to all of Boo’s family.

Boo was a very good person with an open heart of friendship and a terrific sense of humor.

He and Connie were generous enough to open their home in Houston to the golf group from Lafayette.

Connie was wise enough (and generous enough) to leave her newly acquired Houston home, when the raucous golfers from Louisiana crossed the Sabine River into Texas.)

Since we had their new house to ourselves, we cooked supper there, orchestrated by an infamous culinary expert who was trained and employed by LaFonda’s in Lafayette.

Understandably, our chef (who was also Marine trained) had no knowledge of where cooking utensils, pots, pans, etc. we’re located in Connie’s kitchen. Therefore, our chef had to continuously go out to the patio (where Boo was enjoying an adult beverage) to ask Boo where is this, where is that, etc.

As you can imagine, Boo had no idea where anything was in the kitchen, so he didn’t bother to leave the patio and his adult beverage!

Nonetheless, we had a great time and a great supper.

At the end of the evening, we told Boo that, as a favor to him, we had used yellow sticky notes labeling each kitchen cabinet and kitchen drawer with what was inside each.

Without hesitation and without releasing his adult beverage, Boo quickly requested, “Can ya’ll also label all of the light switches for me in this new house?”

Fun, laughter and fellowship is what Boo brought to this world and I feel sure that he is bringing all of that to the next world.

To Connie, Jean and all of Boo’s family: your hearts are heavy now, but remember to be thankful that you had had Boo on this earth for as long as you did.

I am extremely grateful for the time that I knew and enjoyed my friendship with Boo Pitre.

May he Rest In Peace.

“ I was with Boo about a month ago in Grand Isle. I have known him since Pharmacy School. I can tell you a few things about the man, he loved his children dearly, he was never robbed of a good time and while his body may no longer be with us his Spirit will last forever. So sorry that he is gone.
